Front Row

By
Denise Rogers

My desk is in the first two rows
that's just beneath the teacher's nose
Her eyes are on me, just like glue.
She watches everything I do.
I raise my hand. I seldom speak.
I swear I am the perfect geek.
I wish I was row four or five,
and then I'd really come alive.
I'd throw some spit balls, pass some notes.
I'd really get the teacher's goat.
I'd make them laugh. I'd be a ham.
I like to joke. That's who I am.
My teacher knows -- and what I fear
Is that is why she keeps me near.

CLASS 585: HANDWRITING - JOINED CONFINED TO P6 & P7 PUPILS

- Entrants are encouraged to use pen
- Portrait presentation
- All entrants to write the following poem:

Rules for School

Get to school before the bell.
In the classroom, do not yell.
In the hallway, do not run.
Make sure that your homework's done.

Tie your shoes and comb your hair.
Don't start dancing on your chair.
Don't draw pictures on the wall.
Don't ride skateboards in the hall.

Don't chew bubble-gum in class.
Don't bring bugs in from the grass.
Don't say things you know are rude.
Never, ever throw your food.

These are rules you should obey.
As for me, I'm sad to say
that's a list of every rule
I forgot today at school.
